

SAAHIP welcomes its new director

Boitumelo Ntsoane

SAAHIP is pleased to announce that Boitumelo Ntsoane has been appointed as its first ever director. As SAAHIP continues to grow, it is important to have dedicated secretariat support.

Boitumelo is both a pharmacist and an astute entrepreneur and business woman. Her career started after completing her degree at Rhodes University in the year 2000. She then completed her internship at Transmed Retail Pharmacies and proceeded to do her community service at Lebowakgomo Hospital in Limpopo. Her experience over the last 14 years in the pharmaceutical industry is broad, which includes medical aid administration within the Metropolitan Health Group, manufacturing and production at Portfolio Pharmaceuticals, supply and distribution of medication in Cartonville, Goldfields Mine primary healthcare clinics and as marketing and liaison Manager at Medipost courier pharmacy.

In 2008, she established a medical centre within her community in Pretoria West. She incorporated a primary health care clinic within her pharmacy, managed by nurses to promote health awareness and education.

Boitumelo is no stranger to the PSSA – she currently serves on the Pretoria PSSA branch committee.

She was nominated in the South African Breweries Kickstart Programme where she won the Business Development Category in 2010. She also won the 2011, Business Partners/Sanlam Emerging Entrepreneur of the year. Nedbank and Khaya FM listeners voted her business which showed high potential for growth and impact and she received mentorship and business incubation through the Aurik Business Accelerator Programme.
